

Undertaking our practical Practice Based Commissioning Development Programme will provide you with the opportunity to examine options and solutions to achieve maximum gain in the following areas:

- Understanding health and well-being needs.
- Reviewing the health impact of services.
- Determining investment priorities.
- Designing evidence based models of care.
- Applying an innovative contractual framework.
- Performance improvement for increased quality and financial stability.
- Communication and engagement strategies.
- Understanding provider economics.
- Stimulating the market.
- Intelligence gathering.

Why people like you choose to work with people like us...

- All members of the CQCS and CQDS team have clinical and management roots firmly embedded in healthcare.
- Our practical, hands-on approach helps you to test out solutions to problems that really work.
- The CQCS and CQDS team are committed to sharing our knowledge to help you improve the health of your local population.

For a no obligation chat about our Practice Based Commissioning Development Programme or other ways that CQCS and CQDS can help you to strengthen Practice Based Commissioning give Sharon Willis a call on 07753 937 066.

CQCS and CQDS Management Office,
86b Billing Road,
Brafield on the Green,
Northampton NN7 1BL

www.cqcs.co.uk
www.cqds.co.uk

Practice Based Commissioning – Achieving Maximum Gain

Part of our programme of investment in strengthening commissioning

Have you and your colleagues identified problems that you need to overcome in order to achieve maximum gain from Practice Based Commissioning?

For example:

- Do you think that engagement between practice based commissioners and the primary care trust needs improving?
- Or do you think that practice based commissioners in your local area need to develop a greater understanding of the core elements of commissioning?

At CQCS and CQDS we recognise that in some areas of the country Practice Based Commissioning is having a significant impact on achieving improvements in patient care. However, we also recognise that in other areas more work is needed to strengthen Practice Based Commissioning and enable primary care clinicians and primary care trusts to work closer together to achieve maximum gain.

With this in mind, CQCS and CQDS are offering a practical and hands-on development programme focused on assisting practice based commissioners and primary care trusts to achieve maximum gain from Practice Based Commissioning. In addition, our Practice Based Commissioning Development Programme focuses on assisting practice based commissioners to make a significant contribution to improving the health outcomes of the local population.

